

L.A. Kings hold Jewish Pride Night at tonight's game

January 26, 2011

Kings to Hold Jewish Pride Night Tonight

The Los Angeles Kings will conduct Jewish Pride Night at tonight's game against the San Jose Sharks at Staples Center, with fans who purchased group tickets being treated to a pregame concert and receiving a commemorative puck.

Jewish-based live music will be performed by the alternative band Purdue Avenue, the choir of Temple Menorah of Redondo Beach and the rock group Positive Feedback during the concert.

Cantor Yonah Klinger of Temple Emanuel of Beverly Hills will sing the national anthem.

Jewish Pride Night is among the theme nights presented by the Kings this season aimed at various religious, ethnic or national groups. The team previously held Armenian Pride Night, Asian Pride Night, Canadian Pride Night, Czech and Slovak Pride Night, Native American Pride Night and Russian Pride Night.